

Please take time to read the following advantages of using pure water window cleaning.

Pure Water Technology

This method of window cleaning utilises 100% of pure water to clean your windows. The water treatment system consists of a 5 stage reverse osmosis unit and a mixed bed de-mineralising resin to produce 100% pure. The nature of de-mineralised water is to strive to return to its natural impure state by actively absorbing all dirt, chemical and minerals it comes across. When used for window cleaning, provided the correct technique has been used, the final rinse water dries to a perfect finish. In fact the window isn't just clean, its left totally sterile, Purgo-clean. As no chemicals or detergents are used, the process is environmentally friendly. Old fashioned window cleaning leaves behind sticky soap residue, which attracts fresh dirt back to the window, while windows cleaned with the reach and wash system, actually stay cleaner for longer! Another added benefit is your frames get a clean too, not a quick wipe over with a dirty cloth but a scrub and rinse with clean pure water.

High Reach Poles

High reach poles almost eliminate the use of ladders. Ladder use results in up to 20 fatalities per annum and approx. 1500 accidents. The use of poles allows the operative to remain on the ground and hence much safer, and at the same time meeting the latest health and safety executive (HSE) proposals. By employing us to clean your windows with the pure water high reach pole system, your conscience can be clear that you are employing a company that uses the safest window cleaning system available today.

Environmentally Friendly

Environmental advantages are realised too. Pure water is exactly that (with no added chemicals as found in detergents). No danger to your delicate plants, animals and most of all you and your family. The majority of the 180,000 window cleaners in the UK are still using detergents to clean windows, with a potential use of up to half a kilo of detergent in a day. Imagine all that detergent returning to the ground and polluting the water table. Pure water use is the only choice for the environmentalist and those who genuinely care about our planet.

Your Privacy

Your privacy is taken care of as well. With our high reach pole system, we remain on the ground thus preserving your modesty and privacy.

Our Investment

Our investment of thousands of pounds was required to set up a professional high reach pure water window cleaning system. This investment means we treat cleaning your windows professionally and this will be reflected in the service you receive.

PLEASE NOTE:

Please note sometimes it can take two or three cleans before your windows are spotless. After your first few cleans some streaks or water spots may be left on the glass. This is because it can take a while to remove all detergents and films from the windows. Please don't be too concerned as within a short time your windows will be perfectly clean.
